RE: Hurricane Season UPDATE

The Atlantic hurricane season officially started on June 1, with an expected increase in activity in August followed by a peak in September. While Southern and coastal states are at the highest risk to experience a hurricane or tropical storm, our region can also be impacted by these severe weather events. Tropical Storm Sandy brought more than 20 inches of rain to southern Pennsylvania in 2012, and most recently, Tropical Storm Fay hit New Jersey and parts of Pennsylvania in July 2020, causing flooding and related storm damage. If you have experienced storm damage because of a summer storm, our team of claim professionals is on-call 24/7 to respond. You can contact our Claims Department at 1-800-462-4972 to report a claim 24/7 and someone will contact you ASAP.

Due to the recent events that have transpired in Philadelphia, access to the City may be disrupted. We are open for business. While we are still able to transact all of our usual operations, our walk-in customer service area remains closed. All other business will continue as normal. Please be safe.
